

Do you know an outstanding mid-career woman making an impact in clean energy?

Nominate her for a C3E Award

The U.S. Clean Energy Education and Empowerment (C3E) Awards recognize rising women working to advance clean, renewable sources of energy, related technologies, or clean energy policy. Each winner will receive $8,000 and national recognition. Winners of the 6th Annual C3E Awards will be announced at the C3E Women in Clean Energy Symposium in 2017.

C3E Awards for mid-career leadership and achievement are given in 8 categories:

- Advocacy
- Business
- Education
- Entrepreneurship
- Government
- International
- Law & Finance
- Research

Eligible nominees are mid-career women working in the clean energy sector and are U.S. citizens or permanent residents.

Accepting nominations

February 1, 2017 – March 20, 2017
at www.C3Eawards.org

The U.S. Department of Energy, Massachusetts Institute of Technology Energy Initiative, and the Stanford Precourt Institute for Energy collaborate to implement the U.S. C3E program, which is part of the international C3E initiative within the 25-government Clean Energy Ministerial.

Get inspired!

C3E Award winners are an impressive group of women making a difference. Recognizing leadership and achievement promotes career advancement and inspires women of all ages to contribute to the clean energy field.

Visit C3Eawards.org/winners

Join the conversation.

Connect with us on LinkedIn and Twitter (@C3E_EnergyWomen). Use the hashtag #C3EWomen when you mention C3E. Join C3Enet.org, our international network of women working in energy. Network and support others. Share opportunities. Find inspiration. Receive updates about the C3E Awards.